

Company History

North Coast Gas Transmission (NCGT) is a wholly owned operating subsidiary of Somerset Gas Transmission Company, LLC, a privately held company that invests in opportunities to utilize pipeline and gathering assets throughout the country.

In 1998, North Coast first began operating natural gas service on 135 miles of converted products pipelines originating in Cygnet, OH and ending east of Cleveland in Mantua, OH. In 2002, Somerset fully acquired North Coast, which was a catalyst for expansion and development. Since the acquisition by Somerset, North Coast has grown its peak capacity from 30,000 dekatherms per day to over 100,000 dekatherms per day and has added more than 10 new delivery locations along its system. In 2006, North Coast added more than 90 miles to its system through asset acquisitions that extended our reach to the Toledo and Marion markets. In 2009, North Coast developed an additional expansion in the Cleveland area which connects two major pipeline systems for market diversification. We currently operate roughly 280 miles of pipeline across northern Ohio.
